MANY NEW MEMBERS

GLENDALE GARDEN SOCIETY GETS ADDITIONS—HONOR TO HOUDYSHEL

Mrs. John Paul, of 533 Orange avenue, has just joined the Garden society. Scarcely a day passes without some new addition to our ranks; and all such nice, congenial, homeloving people. Mr. Beldin of 432 S. Jackson came into headquarters this week to offer young plants of beautiful, star-shaped phlox, also plants of Chinese pinks. Members of the society, or those joining, are eligible to all the advantages of this exchange system. Call on Mrs. Nanno Woods at headquarters, 1111 W. Broadway, or phone her, Glendale 1357.

Mr. Edwards offers young pepper trees; this offer might be taken advantage of by folks with an unshady backyard; the pepper tree grows quickly, affords abundant shade, and its branches make a delightful playhouse for little ones to play under. If anybody possesses too many calla lily plants and would like to get rid of them, a member of the society could make good use of them.

Dr. Rudy of Rudy Bldg., Brand boulevard, has generously offered a vacant lot on Milford street for the use of a Potato club or any other horticultural or agricultural club formed under the auspices of the schools or the Garden society. Dr. L. H. Hurtt also places at our disposal any lots he may own in Glendale.

Professor Houdyshel visited headquarters today, and asked for a few plants of Vinca Major to be used in window boxes for the High School. The residents of Glendale will soon become such ardent gardeners and floral artists than an exchange of the simpler plants will cease to satisfy their ambitions. Our local professional growers after a while will be obliged to enlarge their stock, in order to meet future demands.

By the way, Professor Houdyshel has been asked to write a series of articles for the Rural Southern California department of the Tribune-Express. He was selected to be the author of this series because he is ranked as an authority next to Luther Burbank on the subject of plant-breeding and cross-fertilization. We in Glendale appreciate this tribute paid to Professor Houdyshel, for we feel he belongs to us, in that he is professor of agriculture and general science at the High School, and also holds the office of vice-president of the Glendale Garden society.

The next meeting of the society will be held at the High School auditorium, Thursday evening, February 3, at 8 o'clock, when Professor Schufeldt will deliver a stereopticon talk on "Dollars for Boys and Girls; Wealth For All." This lecture will be free to the public, and will prove one of the most interesting addresses ever given in Glendale.

Mrs. Woods has for distribution at headquarters a box of clumps of red and yellow cannas, also pink carnation cuttings. A list of plants offered this week to old and new members may be obtained on application.

MET WITH MRS. BRALY

The Richard Gridley Chapter of the D. A. R. met at the home of Mrs. J. H. Braly on Wednesday, adjourning meeting to attend the Wednesday Morning club in Pasadena, where the members were bidden as special guests to hear the talk given before the Pasadena club by Mr. Braly. Beginning with the early days of California, he took his interested audience with him through the Spanish era to the present date.

Mr. Braly and parents were among the early settlers of California and during his wonderfully interesting talk, many vivid scenes were depicted.

Mrs. M. D. Chamberlin, also a D. A. R. member, extended the invitation to the Glendale chapter as chairman of the Landmark section of the Wednesday Morning club and it was before this section that Mr. Braly spoke on Wednesday. Following this program the Gridley chapter adjourned to meet the following morning, Thursday, at Mrs. Braly's home. It was at this meeting that Mrs. Chas. W. Houston was elected vice regent of the Richard Gridley chapter to fill the vacancy made by the former officer, Mrs. E. L. Babcock, who has moved from the city.

Mrs. Braly has been most active in all D. A. R. movements and has been the originator of many chapters. As a reward of merit, for it surely seems such, this popular woman has been asked to run for State Vice Regent and has accepted. Messages have arrived from chapters throughout the state promising their loyal support at the conference to be held February 10 and 11 at Hotel Green, Pasadena.

ENJOYS ACTIVE WEEK

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB MEMBERS AND FRIENDS ENJOY MUSICALE

The Tuesday Afternoon club of Glendale is closing a week of many activities. On Monday a delightful concert program was presented by the College of Oratory and Music of the University of Southern California. This is the first of a series of educational lectures and concerts which the Board of Directors have planned to be given at short intervals throughout the club year free to the general public. The Tuesday Afternoon club has received many favors from the public, and they wish through this series of entertainments to say "Thank you." The second number of this course will be a lecture to be given by Dr. T. G. Burt, Professor of History of Occidental College, Tuesday evening, January 18, at 8 p. m., in the High School auditorium. The subject of Dr. Burt's lecture is "The Rhine in Legend and History."

At the regular meeting of the club, held Tuesday in Masonic Temple, Mrs. Chauncey L. Higbee charmed her audience with a delightful and masterly interpretive reading of "The Two Virtues," an English comedy of seven characters, written by Alfred Sutre. This is the first year this comedy has been presented in the United States. Sothern is at present starring in it in the east, and theater goers will be interested to know that the play is slated for Los Angeles later in the season. Mrs. Higbee has presented this delightful play before the Channel and Ebell clubs of Los Angeles, and has numerous other club engagements in the near future. Two vocal solos by Miss Elsa Cowan were well received. Delicious refreshments were served at the close of the program by Mrs. S. C. Packer, assisted by Miss M. Irene Muller and Mrs. A. S. Chase. Miss Muller, who is the art instructor at the High School, had decorated the serving table with the most unique and artistic appointments. The color scheme of blue and gold was beautifully carried out in the bright blue painted eucalyptus buds, painted persimmon stems, coreopsis, ferns, and baskets of fruits.

During the business session of the club, Mrs. Mattison B. Jones was unanimously endorsed by the club as their candidate for the vice presidency of the District Federation. Practically all of the clubs in the San Fernando valley are boosting the candidacy of Mrs. Jones, and this capable and charming woman is receiving the support of a large number of influential clubs in the district.

The office of historian of the club was created by the board of directors, and Miss Alice Frank appointed to the position. A calling committee was also added to the list of standing committees, and Mrs. Frederick Baker appointed as chairman. Mrs. P. S. McNutt, curator of the Parliamentary section and assistant chairman of Parliamentary law in the District Federation, announced the Parliamentary Law contest to be held at the District convention at Hollywood in March.

Mrs. Daniel Campbell, chairman of the Ways and Means committee reported the response so far made to the subscription list which this year will swell the clubhouse fund.

FOR MISS GILSON

As a farewell courtesy to Miss Dorothy Gilson, who left today to resume her study course at Berkeley, a dinner party was given last evening by Miss Dorothy Hunt in the parental home at 121 West 5th street.

Enchantress carnations in shades of pink and fern fronds adorned the attractive table, the dinner menu being carried out in the color scheme.

Comic postals suggesting characteristics of the guests were the amusing cards marking covers for the honoree, Dr. and Mrs. D. W. Hunt, Mrs. E. Gilson, Miss Caroline Freeman of New York, Miss White and the hostess for the evening.

CURIOUS STORY OF PHYSICAL ENCOUNTER BETWEEN FORD'S GUARDS AND DELEGATES

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

THE HAGUE, Jan. 14.—It was learned here today that a fist fight took place in Stockholm between Ford's personal guards and a number of Peace delegates. It is stated that on the eve of Ford's departure for the United States, a party of the delegates seeing Ford entering an automobile, surrounded by the retainers paid to guard him from all danger, the delegates made a sudden attack on the posse. When they learned their mistake they said that they had believed an attempt was being made to kidnap Ford. This story is not credited here; but it is thought that there was a physical encounter of some kind between members of the Peace party.

PLAY A SUCCESS

BRILLIANT AND APPRECIATIVE AUDIENCE GREETS "A BACHELOR'S ROMANCE"

Glendale owes the Masonic bodies of the city a debt of gratitude for having given it the privilege of witnessing the fine and finished production of Martha Morton's attractive play, "A Bachelor's Romance." Not only was the audience brilliant and representative but it was appreciative. The fine points of the play were perceived at once and received their meed of applause.

Naturally the interest of the play centered around Sylvia, which part was acted by Gladys Justema, with a naturalness and ease that were extremely pleasing. The artless, simple, and specially sweet nature of David Holmes' ward were finely brought out. Miss Justema seemed naturally made for her part and looked just what Sylvia was supposed to be, a natural, straightforward, upright and loving girl.

That Miss Justema did not miss any of the points in her part goes without saying. She had apparently been carefully trained and walked the boards as though they were her natural domain. She was specially effective in the scenes where she was acting with "David" and evidently had so carefully studied her role that she was able to identify herself with it. In every way Miss Justema deserved the approval of the audience, which she liberally received.

As David Holmes, the leading male part in the play, Charles L. Peckham exhibited as fine a piece of character delineation as has ever been witnessed in this city. His carefully thought-out interpretation of the character was an excellent study. From the moment of his entrance to the final climax when he realizes that his ward loves him his portrayal of the sober literary critic was a wonderful piece of acting.

The kindly, warm affection of the old bachelor was delicately brought out and when in answer to the stimulus of the youth of his ward the critic leaves his books and starts out on a round of simple gayety the acting was not overdone, but still retained the delicacy of its conception was not lost and the fun was not overdone. In every way Mr. Peckham gave a clever, artistic representation of the bachelor and his heart drama.

Dwight W. Stephenson, who acted David's brother Gerald, gave a finished picture of the careless man of pleasure, whose heart was nevertheless in the right place and whose reform and rehabilitation in the last act enable him to play the part of the solver of difficulties for his brother. His acting was lifelike and artistic.

In the case of the play Thursday night the leading characters were admirably sustained in their parts by the excellence of their support. Owen Rhodes played Martin Beggs, David's secretary, with a certainty and restraint that marked him out as endowed with fine natural histrionic powers. The ease of his action and its thorough keeping with its surroundings were so apparent that he, too, earned the applause and appreciation of the discriminating audience.

As Mr. Mulberry, James Henry Ilse portrayed the antique literary man with much originality. Like all the other characters the acting here was not overdone. The artistic qualities of this part were carefully brought out in those little motions and shades of motion that speak more loudly than words.

J. Frank Littell gave a very natural interpretation of Harold Reynolds, the young literary man, who loses his head and loses his betrothed (Sylvia) when he wins the $10,000 prize. He was good at all times and specially good in his closing scene.

Owen C. Emery acted Archibald Lytton Savage, a modern literary man with an open frankness that gave the character a distinct place in the setting of the play. Stanley Gorman was a good-looking butler whose silence was golden.

Of the female characters in the play it would be impossible to speak otherwise than with appreciation and admiration. Rae Davis covered herself with honors through her very clever representation of the maiden lady with a sharp tongue, Miss Clementina. She acted the part to the life, never missed any of her points and excelled herself in the closing scene of the play.

As Helen Le Grand, Mrs. Harry Neel, Jr., looked the part, a widow of the world, and showed up in each scene in which she appeared with just the touch of relief which brought out the other parts and added wonderfully to the whole. Alma Turner looked the part of Harriet Leicester, a society girl, and showed up well in the final act.

The farm scene, which constitutes the last act of the play, was given with a vim and gusto and naturalness that was both amusing and clever. It every way the play was a success. The crowded audience, the excellent scenery, which was carefully conceived to frame the play in the best manner possible and executed by our local artist, Jacob Fink, and the careful training of the actors all did credit to the management of Mr. Willis Marks and his assistant, Mrs. Willis Marks. The play will be given again tonight and will doubtless attract again many of those who were present on Thursday as well as an additional audience that should leave standing room only. No one should miss this excellent production. It is presented with a beauty of scenery and a perfection of acting that would do credit to any metropolitan theater.

Very great credit is due Mr. W. S. Rattray, who acted as business manager of the play. To Mr. Rattray's exertions was due the fact that the greater part of the tickets for both nights were sold out before the play opened. He also secured the advertising for the program and attended to many other details.

The following members of the Masonic bodies acted as ushers and discharged the duties of their office with tact and courtesy: David G. Crofton, chief usher; W. E. Evans, Clem Moore, Ed Lynch, Tom Ogg and A. M. Beamon.

QUARTER CENTURY WED

TROPICO BRIDE AND GROOM OF TWENTY FIVE YEARS CELEBRATE HAPPY EVENT

It was truly a most happy gathering of relatives and friends who assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Hewitt, 671 Gardena avenue, Thursday evening, January 7, and there celebrated the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of this charming and interesting couple. For this happy event the living room was resplendent in its decorations of America's national colors, red, white and blue banners and many flags being arranged. The dining room, too, presented a patriotic appearance, for here England's colors, banners and pennants, were arranged. The American and British colors produced a harmonious effect.

Twenty-five years ago in Warrington, England, Miss Mary Alice Naylor and Mr. William Hewitt plighted their troth in the Wycliffe Congregational church. America, with her wonderful country and great possibilities and advantages ere long lured Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt and they came to this land of promise eventually locating in Tropico. Thursday evening's celebration was one of the happiest of the many which Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt have enjoyed since their wedded bliss began, a quarter of a century ago.

Mrs. Hewitt was very charming in a beautiful white crepe de chine, wearing the same wreath of orange blossoms she did when a bride.

One of the pleasing features of the delightful evening was the English hand bell ringers, composed of members of the H. M. Andrew family, now residents of Los Angeles, who contributed many beautiful musical numbers on their bells. The wedding cake, which was the principal decoration on the table, at which the wedding supper was served, was elaborately decorated in white and silver, and was cut by the bride of twenty-five years ago. Dainty silver bon bon baskets marked covers for twenty-five of the most intimate friends of Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt, who were Mrs. H. M. Andrews, Mrs. E. H. Young, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Young, Mr. and Mrs. B. Hathaway, Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Hyer, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. West, Mrs. H. West, Miss Anna Anderson, Miss Rona Meldrum, Miss Hattie Hyer, Miss Elsie Anderson, Miss Nellie Ford, Miss Elsie Bell, Miss Nellie Andrew, Miss Dora Hewitt and Miss Minnie Andrew; Messrs. Arthur Andrew, Joseph Burgess, Ernest Andrew, Will Hewitt, Percy Andrew and Albert Hewitt.

Many beautiful remembrances were received by this happy bride and groom, of days long since passed.

She will have something particularly informing to say on this topic a large attendance of parents and teachers is expected.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR TYPHOID FEVER

According to a decision rendered by the Wisconsin Supreme Court, typhoid fever in an occupational or industrial disease. The suit in which this decision was rendered grew out of the death of an employe of a lumber company in the State of Wisconsin. Water supplied in the lumber mill, where the employe worked, was drawn from the city supply and also from the intake pipe in the river. It was claimed that through carelessness, contaminated water was drawn from the river and became mixed with the water from the city water works, because of improper connecting pipes.

It was claimed that the lumber company through negligence caused and permitted this employe to drink of this polluted water, thereby causing him to be sick with typhoid fever and ultimately causing his death. It was held that the drinking of the polluted water by the employe was an accidental occurrence, while he was performing services growing out of, and incidental to, his employment, and that diseases caused under these circumstances are injuries within the act.

A similar case in New Jersey shows what kind of litigation may face any city that is not alive to the necessity of preserving sanitary conditions in connection with public service. The plaintiff in this case was a customer of the water company and contended that three of his children had became ill through drinking water contaminated by sewage. In this case the court gave a decision against the city, holding that it was the duty of the city as having contracted to supply water to see that it was fit for the purpose for which it was supplied. Water is a necessity of life according to this decision and those who undertake to trade in it and supply customers stand in no different light than those who deal in foodstuffs. They are bound to use reasonable care to insure that whatever is supplied for food or drink shall be ordinarily and reasonably pure and wholesome.

All over the States the courts are becoming more stringent on this point of reasonable care in supplying public necessities. The court of Appeals in Kentucky recently decided that the city of Henderson, Kentucky, was liable for damages resulting to the owners of property along a small stream into which the city discharged its sewage. Refuse from a distillery was for a time discharged with the sewage of the city, killing fish and making the water unfit for drinking purposes. The court held that the city had permitted the distillery to connect with the city sewage without regulation. The distillery was absolved from responsibility and the city held liable for the damage done.

These decisions indicate that there can be no doubt regarding the responsibility of a concern supplying water for domestic purposes, whether it be public or private. It is only by demanding pure water that the public will be able to secure it. These decisions also indicate that the public is more and more demanding that the laws pertaining to water pollution be enforced.

Glendale is fortunate in possessing one of the finest water supplies in California and also in having it almost direct from its source. In this way pollution is reduced to a minimum. However, the necessity for vigilance is seen in the fact that not long ago it was found necessary to order the removal of a vault or cesspool within forbidden distance of the water supply of the city. In the light of recent decisions no citizen should wonder at the vigilance of the City of Glendale in this respect.

PROGRESS OF THE GREAT WAR

Notwithstanding the presence of a Peace party at The Hague the great war shows no signs of stopping. If anything the combatants are more bitter against each other. The sinking of liners has not ceased, notwithstanding promises and specious explanations made to President Wilson and the submarines in the Mediterranean continue to take their toll of the lives of women and children. That they will ultimately be run into the nets and destroyed is certain, but that is a matter of more difficulty in the vast waters of the Mediterranean than in the narrow straits of the North Sea, and the other waters around the British coast.

The center of the war seems to have changed to the Balkans, where Germany and Austria have recently overrun Servia and where the Austrians are now battering their way toward the capital of Montenegro, Cettinje. It seems strange to those who have been watching the progress of the war, that the French and Italians permitted the Austrians to capture Mt. Lovcen, the stronghold that dominates the port of Cattaro. This capture opens up the Adriatic to the Austrian fleet and will certainly make it more difficult than ever for Italy to make the Adriatic an Italian sea.

In Bessarabia the Russians with their reorganized army are battering away at the Austrian entrenchments and making something of a success of it. They are also themselves entrenching heavily there and apparently mean to make their present lines a base for further extended operations.

In Greece the Allied troops of the Germans, Austrians and Turks to the number of 500,000 are on the point of making an assault on the French and British lines at Saloniki. There 200,000 French and British troops are ready to repel the assault with the aid of a strong fleet in the outer harbor.

On the western front in France and Flanders there has been little change. The British and French hold their lines steadily and are waiting for favorable weather before attempting any grand "drive" on the German intrenchments. In connection with this part of the vast battlefield it might be well to remember that Lord Kitchener, the British war minister, whose long experience in military affairs entitles him to respectful audience, recently said that no matter what might take place elsewhere the war would ultimately be decided on the western front and that there the Germans would be driven back and Germany ultimately invaded.

While these things have been going on in Europe a British force is trying to battle its way to Bagdad, on the road to which a detachment of British soldiers is shut up in Kut-el-Amara. Fighting elsewhere has ceased, the German colonies being all now in the hands of the British or French.

K. OF P. INSTALLATION

At the recent K. of P. installation of officers there was a large attendance of the brethren. The installing officer was District Deputy Grand Chancellor Shuey. The officials installed were:

Ward Seger, chancellor commander; Dick Mills, vice-chancellor; D. H. Johnson, prelate; H. B. Eachus, master of works; O. S. Sampson, master at arms; F. W. Kinney, master of exchequer; D. W. Nichols, master of finance; Roger B. Wright, keeper of records and seals; Fred Deal, trustee; L. E. Olivas, inner guard; P. W. Cole, outer guard.

It was agreed that the fourth Monday of each month should be set apart for social purposes. The lodge has now a fine clubroom with billiard tables and other games, in the I. O. O. F. hall.

OLD MATCHES AND NEW

A match is a very small thing, but a writer on old times in America, when the great new country was first being settled, says that the lucifier match was perhaps more of a benefit to the people than any other invention. Before that, fire could only be got by striking flint on steel, and it was often some time before a spark could be made strong enough to kindle the waiting bit of wood or flax. In some places fire was still got by rubbing a piece of wood in a hollow of another stick. This also was a long, slow process. In all houses it was the custom to cover up the fire carefully at night, so that there would be some coals to kindle the fresh blaze in the morning.

The wagons in those old days were often very rough. One writer tells of a long journey through the woods which he took with his parents, sitting on a board laid across some posts, fastened to the axle of a single pair of wheels. This funny cart had just room for the three to sit, holding each other closely so as not to be jounced off when they came to a bump in the road.

Little by little men have made improvements on the old ways of doing things, till we have the smooth running motor cars of today, even in the country, far from towns, and electric lights which one turns on by a single touch. And when we need matches we think even the old-fashioned lucifer match entirely out-of-date. We use instead the safety matches, which will not light unless they are rubbed on the outside of the box. This is covered with something that, united with the material at the end of the match, makes the flame. It is the old-time flint and steel in a new form, and a very much more convenient one.

DR. SHAW AT PIONEER BALL

The story of an old-fashioned party in the wilds of Michigan is told by the Rev. Anna H. Shaw in "The Story of a Pioneer." She says:

"Clad royally in my new gown, I attended my first ball in November, going with a party of eight that included my two sisters, another girl, and four young men. The ball was at Big Rapids, which by this time had grown to be a thriving lumber town. It was impossible to get a team of horses or even a yoke of oxen for the journey. So we made a raft and went down the river on that, taking our party dresses with us in trunks. Unfortunately, the raft 'hung up' in the stream, and the four young men had to get out into the water and work a long time before they could detach it from the rocks. Naturally they were soaked through, but they all bore the experience with a gay philosophy.

"When we reached Big Rapids we dressed for the ball, and as in those days it was customary to change one's gown again at midnight, I had an opportunity to burst on the assemblage in two costumes—the second made of bedroom chintz, with a low neck and short sleeves. We danced the 'Money Musk' and the 'Virginia Reel,' 'hoeing her down' (which means changing partners) in true pioneer style. I never missed a dance at this or at any subsequent affair, and I was considered the gayest and most tireless young person at our parties until I became a Methodist minister and dropped such worldly vanities."

SANDWICH PASTE

One pound seeded raisins. One level teaspoon salt, Two tablespoons lemon juice. Two tablespoons orange juice.

Wash and dry the raisins and put through food chopper; add the fruit juice and salt and mix well; pack in jelly glasses. It will keep a month or more in a cool place, and is always ready to be used between bread, crackers or biscuit.

Another good way is to add to the above recipe one-half cup peanut butter or one cup of nut-meats, put through the knife food chopper twice. In that case add one-half cup of orange juice, instead of two tablespoons.

There is no reason why every mother cannot have the paste on hand for sandwiches. It is most economical.

BURBANK

Mrs. L. B. Taylor returned home Wednesday, having spent the past week visiting friends in San Diego.

The new Burbank block has been undergoing several improvements of late, improving the appearance of the interior as well as the exterior.

B. A. Kendall was home over the week end, attending the funeral of his uncle in Riverside Sunday.

Another serious motorcycle accident occurred on the San Fernando road just north of Burbank, causing the death of Arthur Eley. Young Eley did not notice the curve in the road and ran into a tree, crushing his chest and dying almost immediately. The accident occurred Monday evening, early. The body was taken care of by Pulliam Undertaking company, and taken to Long Beach for burial.

Another restaurant has recently been opened in Burbank by Mrs. Jenkins, who formerly had charge of the Burbank Hotel. The new "Exchange Restaurant," which is located at the corner of Second and Orange Grove avenue, is already proving very successful.

Mr. H. Potter of Los Angeles was in Burbank Saturday looking after business interests here.

Mrs. C. E. Davison spent Wednesday in Hollywood with Mr. Davison's parents.

H. W. Lewis and family are moving into the Stancliff house on Second and Tejunga avenue this week.

The many friends of Will Hoist were surprised Saturday morning to hear of his marriage the day before. Mr. Hoist and Miss Theresia Beckett are teaching in the same Grammar school in Los Angeles, and announcement of their marriage came as a complete surprise to their friends.

Thomas Story and son Henry Story have recently opened up a store at 122 East Second street, where they carry a good line of furniture, hardware and household fixtures.

LITTLE GIRLS HELP VOTERS

Women do not vote in Andorra, the smallest republic in the world, but at every election the authorities pay an eloquent tribute to the sex, says the New York Sun.

Among the many things that Andorra is without is a literary test for voters. That men who cannot read or write may not be incapacitated from voting the government provides helpers on election day and these helpers are little girls who, on such occasions, are always dressed in white frocks.

The small white garbed figures are about the polls all day to assist any helpless citizens in preparing their ballots, and implicit confidence is placed in their honesty.

TWO OF A KIND

He was a very slow boy, and his parents apprenticed him to a naturalist, says the Victoria Daily Times. He was a willing worker, even if it did take him two hours to give the canaries their seed. One day he had spent the whole afternoon in changing the water in the goldfish bowl. Finally he finished, and then asked his employer: "What shall I do now, sir?" The naturalist surveyed him mildly. "I think, Robert," he said, "you might take the tortoise out for a run."

BY PROF. BURKE

Tuesday evening, January 18, the Tuesday Afternoon club will give the second affair of their series of free entertainments and lectures in the High School auditorium at 8 o'clock.

Prof. T. G. Burk, from the English department of Occidental College, is the principal speaker for the evening, giving a lecture on "The Rhine in Legends and History."

Other numbers on the program will prove attractive and the Tuesday Afternoon club extends a hearty and most cordial invitation to the general public. No admission is charged and no money offering asked.

NORTH GLENDALE

Last Wednesday evening a delightful musicale was enjoyed at the home of Mrs. Edith P. Wilson of 1020 Stocker street, the occasion being for the purpose of trying out of several beautiful songs, the words of which were written by our local poet, Phil Felton, and were set to music by Mrs. Jessie Alston, also of Casa Verdugo. Among the numerous guests were Mrs. Theda Overmeyer, formerly musical critic of the Yorkshire Post of England. The songs, which included "El Camino Real," "Whispering Trees" and "Southern California" were rendered by Miss Viola Yorba in a very delightful manner. Miss Yorba was accompanied by Miss Janet Wilson, piano, and Earl Watt, violin. Miss Wilson and Mr. Watt gave some very fine additional numbers and Miss Yorba was heard in two very pretty Spanish selections, for which she is noted. The beautiful songs, which are typical of California, were endorsed by Madame Ellen Beach Yaw, who has encouraged the local artists to place them before the public, and it is to be hoped that in the near future these beautiful pieces will be heard by many.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Lawrence of 1304 North Maryland avenue entertained Los Angeles friends at dinner last Wednesday evening.

Mr. C. H. Horton of Dryden street leaves shortly for the Antelope Valley, where he has extensive ranch property.

Mrs. William Alston of 1455 Valley View road is still confined to her bed, suffering from an attack of la grippe.

Arrangements are being made by the Glendale W. C. T. U. to have Mrs. Julia D. Phelps, Los Angeles county president of the W. C. T. U., in North Glendale in the near future, to organize a local union in this section.

Mrs. Wallace Fryer and little son Lloyd of 121 North Howard street spent Thursday with Mr. Fryer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Fryer of 1424 North Pacific avenue.

Friends of Mrs. J. K. Crawford of Viola avenue will be very sorry to learn that she is reported as being much worse, suffering intensely with a serious spinal trouble, having been confined to her bed for several months.

LITERARY SECTION TO MEET

When the Literary Section of the Tuesday Afternoon club meets Tuesday, January 18, at the home of Mrs. E. H. Willisford, 231 Orange street, they will be rewarded for their attendance with a great literary treat. Mrs. Willisford has arranged for the appearance of Mrs. C. L. Higbee, who so delighted the Tuesday Afternoon club, at its last meeting, with her reading of "The Two Virtues." Mrs. Higbee will read on Tuesday "The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife." Members of the literary section are urged not to allow anything to prevent them from hearing this talented reader.

WINDOW BOX DECORATION

Glendale, in its crusade for the installation of window boxes in public buildings, offices and other suitable places, is strictly up-to-date. The custom of placing flower boxes in public windows is spreading in Los Angeles, and is producing pleasing effects. Besides Hamburger's and a few other large stores, the following buildings have come into line this week: The Bronson building and the Security Trust and Savings Bank building. Special devices for fixing these window boxes to walls and sills are being put on the market, and great interest is everywhere being taken in the subject.

Mr. Sidney Brown of San Francisco is visiting his parents, the A. W. Browns of Los Angeles avenue.

Miss Gwendolen Claflin was the hostess to a happy house party, New Year's week, when she entertained Miss Jeanette McClellan and Leota Snyder of Glendale and Miss Aldine Norton of La Canada.

Rev. Theodore Hopping and D. E. Wetherbee attended the midwinter meet of the Presbytery, in Los Angeles, Tuesday.

The young people of the Hawkins' family enjoyed a week-end visit of Miss Minnie Clark of Los Angeles.

Mrs. George Pickrell of Los Angeles has taken the Reeves' bungalow for the winter.

Mr. Seymour Thomas' ranch on Briggs avenue will soon be one of the show places of the valley. This week he purchased a large number of fruit trees and rose vines, which will be planted among the natural growth of wild cherry bushes and live oaks on his place.

Joe Hawkins reports the sale of five acres of unimproved land near Montrose and Rosemont avenues, which was owned by Mr. West, to a New York party who will hold it for speculation.

Improvements have been under way for some time at the Georges Fusenot place here. A new wearing surface on the driveway is being put in while the terracing is finished and grounds prepared for the builders.

Studebaker Car Found in Ditch

Jack Rumsey, in charge of Walton's wells, and B. J. Kirst, deputy road supervisor for this district, found a Studebaker touring car in the brush and ditch at the corner of Los Angeles and Honolulu avenue, Monday morning.

The machine had evidently been stolen, for in it were found robes, gloves and baby blanket. The top of the radiator had been blown off from exhaustion of water and the finish was marred. With all its abuse the machine was in running order and was driven to the Oakdale garage while the owner was being located.

P. L. & P. Officers Here

Some of the chief officials of the Pacific Light and Power corporation have been at La Crescenta looking for a site on which to build a patrol station for Mr. Bacon, one of their patrolmen on the Big Creek power line.

This line commences at Big Creek, Fresno county, where the electricity is generated, and transmitted to the Eagle Rock sub-station, there being transformed and distributed to the railways of Los Angeles. It is a double line two hundred and forty-three miles long and carries one hundred fifty thousand volts, making it the largest power line in the world.

Mr. Bacon, the patrolman of this district, has recently had a horseback trail completed under the transmission line from Eagle Rock to Roscoe road.

Leap Year Party

A merry crowd of young people enjoyed a Leap Year party given by Miss Gladys Thompson last Friday evening. Games and dancing intermingled with music amused the guests throughout the evening.

Notwithstanding it was a Leap Year party it is reported that some of the boys had to meet their young lady friends half way. About ten couples were present.

Raising Money for Church

Now that the holidays are over, the committee appointed to secure funds for the erection of a new church building for the La Crescenta Presbyterian congregation, have started active work. All of La Crescenta churchgoers are bending every effort toward the securing of the new and larger edifice for at present the old cement building is overcrowded Sunday mornings.

The present church was established and built through the efforts of Rev. Coulter of Christian denomination a great number of years ago. For several years it was unoccupied until the Presbyterians secured the permission to use the building from the late B. F. Coulter, son of the founder, and himself founder of the Coulter Dry Goods company in Los Angeles.

District Attorney at La Crescenta

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lee Woolwine and family are rusticating at the La Crescenta Hotel at present. Mr. Woolwine, being the district attorney, only spends the night at this resort, going to his official duties in Los Angeles each day in his car. The Woolwines brought out their Victrola and jolly informal dancing parties and music liven up the hotel. Miss Sara E. Ludlow is the only other new arrival.

Considerable geysers are found in only three places—Yellowstone Park, Iceland and New Zealand. The former are the finest in the world.—Daily Colonist, Victoria.
